

THE GRAMMARIAN

2014

On behalf of the entire yearbook committee, I would like to thank everyone who contributed photos and write-ups. Special thanks to Ms. Kerrigan and the Grammar Development Office, Kim Turner, and Gary Yoon. Finally, a big thanks to Ms. McKegney without whom this yearbook would not have been possible.

Dear HGS Community, Here we go again...another year rapidly coming to a close. The passage of time warps as we get older. A year seemed an eternity to me as a child looking forward to something special happening: that exciting trip to England to visit relatives, a much-anticipated birthday, reaching the magic age when you could become a Brownie or stay home alone or receive a raise in allowance. The passage of a year seemed to take forever. Now, time moves at the speed of light. I measure it in the towering height of a M1 student back at ASC for gym. Wasn't it just yesterday he was clinging to his parent on the first day in Primary?! We must have been having lots of fun in the Prep this year because time certainly has flown! As I reflect on the 2013-2014 school year, it strikes me that we are becoming quite masterful at weaving the 'new' in with the 'old'. We've discovered that some lessons and practice exercises are more effective and more enjoyable when delivered through technology such as SmartBoards and iPads. When the American Pediatric Society recommends that children not have more than 2 hours of "entertainment-based screen time" daily, I'm confident we are weaving in screen time responsibly. Not only that, but by preserving our outdoor noon hour of play, we have a very real response to demands that we "bring back play" and combat the concerning "nature deficit" most 21st century children experience. Our talented yearbook committee, with the support of many picture-takers, has done a wonderful job of capturing some of this time that has flown by. We hope you enjoy reliving precious moments as you leaf through the pages. Here's to a happy, carefree, adventure-filled summer. Sincerely, Linden Gray Head of Prep School

Every school year brings with it a novel tale to tell, perhaps nowhere more so than in a Middle School. Indeed, in the Halifax Grammar Middle School, we find many tales told with memorable characters and multiple plots. In these sundry stories, the Age of Wonder meets a Kaleidoscope of Discovery between the red brick, hard covers of the Tower Road Campus.

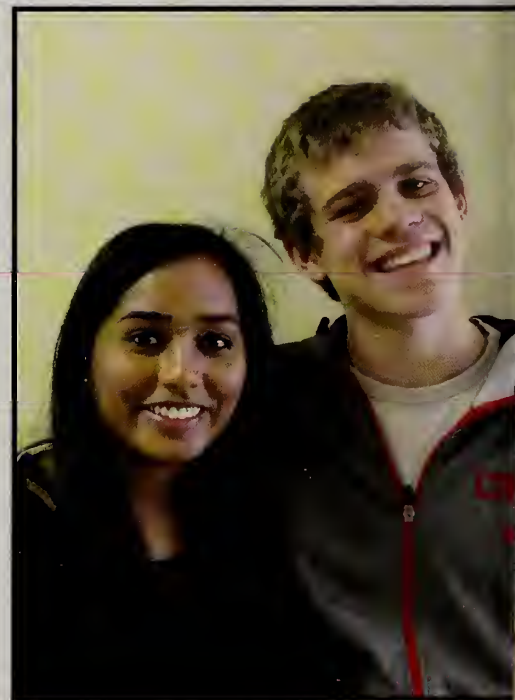

From September's early chapter (where students are introduced to their robed Masters of Math and English, Science and Social Studies, Languages, Art, and Physical Education and also meet their young, temerarious fellow travellers) to the thickening plot of chapters named "December" and "January" (where the befouled villains of subject challenges – those injurious assignments, iniquitous quizzes, nefarious tests, and pernicious projects – and sometime social discord all rise up along the pebbled path to keep our strong-minded student heroes from reaching their inspired goals) to the dramatic climax in the chapter entitled "June," when our scholarly swashbucklers uncover run known, stouthearted strength and tenacious talents to valiantly vanquish these revolting villains, with requisite broadsword pens in hand, our students always find themselves transformed by the never-ending, always-rewarding, epic of another year's tale, memorable and meaningful, in the Halifax Grammar Middle School.

Steven Laffoley Head of Middle School

361 days – That's how long we've been Head Boy and Head Girl. We were just talking about how crazy it is that we will be the outgoing student council in a few days. It seems so surreal that after endless dreaming about our final year, it's ALMOST over. Like many of our classmates, we see the finish line, and even though we might be exhausted, we are sprinting towards it! However, we are starting to realize just what we're leaving behind. The people and memories at the Halifax Grammar School have truly made not only our term as Head Boy and Girl wonderful, but also our entire time here wonderful. Student Council this year has been a whirlwind for us as we can now imagine it must always be for the new Head Boy and Girl. The student council as well as other students planned some fantastic events like an anti-bullying assembly and a Wake-a-thon. We must say that it has been nothing short of an absolute honour to lead such a talented group of students, and we will be forever proud that you gave us this chance - Thank You. We would also like to thank our awesome student council. You guys always strive to find new ways of doing things, and we couldn't have asked for a better group of people to put up with our crazy requests and on-the-spot meetings. Finally and most importantly, thank you Ms. Baillie, Mr. Moffatt, Mr. McGarrigle, Mr. Joseph, and Ms. Woodford for your open ears and unending support; you don't know how much we appreciate it. Lastly, we hope you all had a great year and we wish the incoming student council all the best. If we could give you any advice, it would be to cherish every moment because time flies faster than you think!

-Renuka and Richard

The 2013-14 school year was memorable as we celebrated Canada's remarkable achievements in the winter Olympics and completed our first year as a fully accredited school in the Canadian Accredited Independent Schools organization of Canada.

The Canadian athletes competing in this year's winter Olympics in Sochi distinguished themselves in remarkable ways, some athletic, some not.

I will never forget Gilmore Junio's selfless act of gifting his spot in the 1,000 metre speed skating event to fellow Canadian and competitor, Denny Morrison, who had fallen earlier in the qualifying trials. Denny was favored for the event, and Gilmore's decision allowed Morrison to skate to a silver medal. Upon reflection, I believe the medal victory was secondary to the Gilmore's sportsmanship. I think Gilmore Junio would have fit in well at the Grammar school. Each year, I continue to be amazed at our students' incredible poise, compassion and character. Our service initiatives are driven by student interest and continue to grow. Our music program is in a perpetual stage of expansion and our art displays and drama productions are superb. This year, senior students participated in a cultural trip to China, complete with a significant service component, and prep students continued the gift of song through numerous performances at various senior homes. Our middle school students began a new initiative, preparing a weekly meal for families staying at Ronald Macdonald House.

And as always, our students excelled in academics with nearly all of our grads gaining entrance to their universities of choice, often with significant scholarship. Our faculty and students make Grammar a truly special place. We continue to evolve through initiatives such as the introduction of Mandarin classes and the continued expansion of arts programming. We thank our yearbook personnel for capturing the sights and emotions of the year, so we may reflect upon and enjoy these memories in future years.

Assemblies and Special Events

Assemblies at HGS this year featured a wide range of speakers. Besides the ever eloquent Mr. Laffoley (heading up the Spelling Bee below) and Mr. Addley (leading our Remembrance Day ceremony above), students also took the stage themselves to discuss important issues, upcoming events, or even sing, dance and play instruments. Prep classes took turns leading their assemblies to share their learning and ideas, and don't forget their ever-popular "Thumbs Up" Award! Guest speakers, such as Free the Children and Barb Stegemann shared their knowledge, talent, and experience.

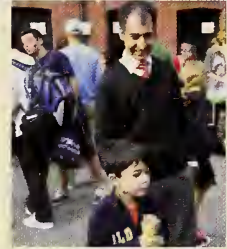

PAC

The Parent Activities Committee contributes to the life of the school in a great many ways, providing fun, community-enhancing activities like our ice-cream social, Holiday Munch, book fair, field day, and everyone's favorite: Thursday pizza days. They host a staff appreciation lunch in April and raise money to support school programs. Thank you to all the class parents and other parent volunteers who help make Grammar life so wonderful!

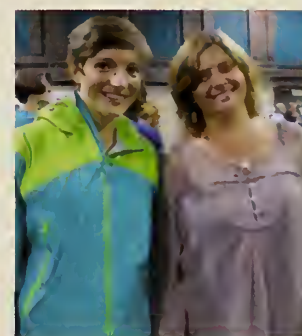

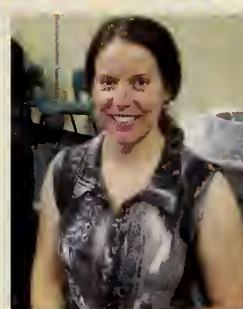

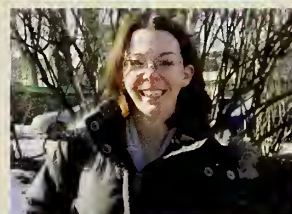

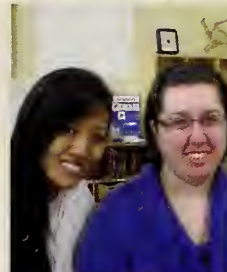

Assemblies sometimes featured artistic performances, such as the collaboration of erhu composer and performer Lan Tung with student musicians. (Thank you very much, Ms. Hatfield!) But assemblies were certainly not all confined to the stage of the auditorium; on some days, the school came together for more dynamic activities. From some friendly house rivalry to general games and competitions, zumba to pep rallies, talent shows, plank contests, and more, the assembly period was often a time of energetic activity and laughter.

Brad Acott

Aka soph, bacott, brophia, the wife, the tickle monster, the s assassin.

Brad Acott is a lifer, and he is most known for two things: his interactions with the opposite gender, and his protection of his family's belongings. Basically every girl has been interested in Brad at some point despite his long-term relationship with Sophia, one of the best backs in the city (B.M). Brad is also an elite hockey goalie, having played many years at the AAA level. He is known for his athletic ability in net, and his poooooooootential. Brad loves sports, and he is always in need of more stats. Brad has always been generous by letting us play xbox at his house, even though he prefers Wii sports. He lets us stay as long as we want, provided we don't touch his father's bowl or his bush outside. Seriously, we've known Brad forever, and he has always been very kind to us.

Aram Al-Afif

Aram joined us at Grammar in grade 7 on full athletic scholarship for tennis (often compared to a young Nadal), after leaving the public school system for beef-related reasons. Fueled by frequent consumption of Zatar, Aram quickly began to flourish in our sports community. But we also soon learned that Mr. Al-Afif wasn't just your average jock. His insatiable thirst for improving his already Hendrix-like guitar skills quickly became apparent. He is also passionate about his relationships: the only word we could use to describe Aram's relationships with teachers was "unique", and his mother is never further away than his phone (documented record for consecutive missed calls is 37 in one night). In his spare time, he enjoys losing himself in the music of John Mayer or taking a late night bath. 2012 was Aram's "golden year"; it began with an unforgettable win in the Rothesay tennis tournament, sparking a few (certainly memorable) chants along the way. Although Aram may be leaving Grammar, he will leave a legacy behind, and we are sure he'll captivate everyone he meets (with things like "the smurph") for years to come. - Aiden, Iain W, and Andrew aka J bum, aka bez, aka husky, aka tinder surprise. Jordan arrived in grade 3 and has been dazzling the girls with his chubby cheeks and bowl cut ever since. This has included the great skittles incident of 2008, and his off and on relationship with Claire since grade 6. He also landed on YTV's hit TV show Aquateam, leaving him a nice nest egg that he has slowly but surely been wasting by giving generous loans to friends, most of whom struggle to pay him back. Jordan is big into sports, which makes sense since he works at his dad's company, Cleve's. He is dedicated to the sport of hockey, and has succeeded greatly, recently being drafted to the QMJHL. He's known for being a strong and physical presence. He is also a talented pool player and showed impressive skill by killing a cue ball in Keji. Jordan is also an accomplished gamer, especially in brick breaker and Quiz up. However, he is not as adept in Tetris, as he is prone to trying to force things when they just won't fit. In all seriousness, Jordan truly is a great friend, someone who will always listen and cheer you up. He will be missed for his always being up for it attitude, his caring, and his humor.

Jordan Bezanson

- Phat Beej, Big Rich, Ferris, Snacks, Bluteau, Captain Stordy, and My-key

Will Bluteau

Squillard, aka bluteau, aka sweat will, aka cheech and chong. Words can't describe William Charles Leo Bluteau. What words can describe the dominance of his personality, or portray the 100 times we've feared for our lives after beating him in a video game? When I befriended Will in grade 5, I was an innocent child. Now, after years under his tutelage, I'm responsible for grad write ups filled with enmity and spite. Everything Will does, he does with passion. No one raised the level of competition in gym like Will. Heck, this guy is even competitive about the quality of his lunch compared to yours. This is an appropriate place to talk about Heather. She's the kind of mom you read about but never actually meet. She's kind to a fault, patient, caring, and a peerless baker. From grade 7, she opened her house to boys at lunch, feeding us and turning a blind eye to vulgarity and the wrecking of her furniture. In short, she's why we're all friends with Will. Anyway, back to him. He has always been an elite athlete, going from being the fastest guy to the strongest. His athleticism is matched only by his intense loyalty and compassion. Those who don't travel with Will to Acadia next year will miss him for his remarkable passion, loyalty, and humour. -Phat Beej, Big Rich, Ferris, Snacks, Captain Stordy, My-key, and J-bum

Ursula Calder

Ursula aka urs-purs, urs-frog, u-bomb, ursie-mouse, u-dog, is an all-rounded character. Not only does she play provincial field hockey and occasionally scores baskets for the other team in JV ball, she is also one of Grammars most-renowned public speakers and star trumpeters. Furthermore, this arts steward is capable of putting on her own production of Emma and performing breathtaking roles in both the musical and drama club. Overall, everyone knows her for her loud, opinionated voice, and we all love that about her. She's always there for boy, girl, and pet problems. Ursula, we know that you're worried for what's to come in the future, but know that we, and many others, are sure that you are capable of accomplishing much more than you dream of. We love sossosossosososososo much, and we are always ready to wear your lilac dresses.

Love FG, MG, and IK <3

Marc Cameron

Marc is a man of mystery. Although he can sometimes be a plankton, an ark, or an ar, most days he actually is a shark. Some say that he runs a marathon every day ... at least three times. He hasn't actually ever run a marathon, but there was one day that he just decided to run forty two kilometers anyway ... and he finished this in under four hours. With his unexpected and decidedly hilarious sense of humour, Marc always makes us laugh (especially when we are in Physics class). On top of that, Marc can do anything with a calculator, even an ancient TI-81. Have a great time at university, Marc. We know that you will be the best at whatever it is that you decide to do.

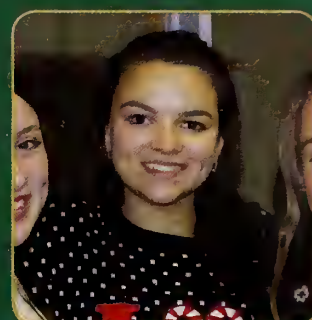

-SD, JM

Eve Casha

Eve Kathryn Casha, if she were to be a fruit, she would definitely be a raspberry. She has a colorful personality, especially raspberry red because she is so loving towards her friends and Garrett. Secondly, she's small like one—in fact, she was upset because she thought she wasn't little anymore because she weighed 108 lbs. (You're still not big enough to win me in wrestling—and never will be.) Most importantly, her cheeks are fuzzy like a raspberry, too, fuzzy enough to make us feel better when we're sad. But, Eve, of these raspberry qualities, the one that stands out the most is how sweet you are. Having you as a twin was like having a best friend who was always there with me. Eve, you should know that you are a twin to us all. We love you berry much<3

Love, your twins—L-dog and I-dog

Lara Casha

Once an extremely shy, timid, and awkward girl, Lara is now one of the most outspoken people in our grade. In middle school, Lara wanted to take a road trip to Texas in a Honda, but she never did. Now, she's not afraid to just go for it. Lara is capable of sitting down at a desk for five consecutive hours to bang out anything, whether it's an H.I. physics lab, or an extended essay. That is why she's got the marks that we all want. But that's not all. Lara looks good in anything, especially in Diane's pharmaceutical sweater paired with those burgundy glasses from middle school. You always know how to give your most honest opinion and advice, something we'll need in the future through our occasional 4-hour Skype conversations. Larry, or L-dog, whatever you decide to do, we know that you'll kill it. Love you to the hobo bush and back.

Love Evie and Kimmy

Shahrdad Baliran

Look up in the sky. Is it a bird? Is it a plane? Yes, actually, with our very own pilot at the helm. Shahrdad is a regular highflyer who is obsessed with "aero-direction" to such an extent that he has even molded his hair to achieve the lowest possible drag co-efficient. Ambiguously bent and our resident joker, he puts a smile on everyone's face, although it is sometimes a rictus. Not all his jokes are for everyone, but that does not stop him from trying. Shahrdad's most uncanny ability is to transition effortlessly from phase to phase: most of these phases include going in and out of buildings. So go on Shahrdad, and show the world what one man and his bottle of hair gel ... sorry, paste, can do.

-RM

Ian Dawson

A good natured old style Canadian kid, or we think so at least. A man of total mystery whose origins are so shrouded in mist we can't remember much about his early life, yet we sneakily suspect that it's because we confused him with another Ian, slightly larger one. Able to leap moderately tall buildings in a single bound, he is a devotee of the arts of jumping around on things. The French call it parkour, but as he takes German, he wouldn't know that. Fond of climbing tall walls and standing quietly, we can only assume he is training for a career as a super spy the like of which the world has never known. If that does happen, we demand to be first in line for autographs. -SD

Nikan Fakhari

Nikan is a student who came to join us at the Grammar School from Iran. He is a cultured individual who enjoys a wide variety of activities. The majority of these include, but are not limited to, being Persian. Nikan is fluent in the seductive language of Farsi, that is, we think so, but we can't be sure as we don't speak it. Nikan is also quite a deep and thoughtful individual. He believes that if you give a man a fire, he will only be warm for a day, so it is therefore better to light that man on fire and let him be warm for the rest of his life. Deep. He is the new Darius in all aspects except without the leopard, so go on Nikan, they are waiting for you out there.

-SD

Mikey Fraser

Aka My-key, aka grumpy pants mike, Michael # 2, sweat mike, (basically just an adjective + mike) aka eamon aka Captain Hook: Mikey arrived in grade 7, attached at the hip to his friend, Liam. He soon integrated into the Grammar community through his common interests in basketball, hummus, and academics. Mikey had a memorable junior high career, but high school has been even more so. In grade 10, Mikey had highs such as hitting eight 3s in the provincial final. However, Mikey really struggled with being normal looking compared to his much more attractive siblings. Mikey has always been a big fan of movies, and his favorites include Django Unchained and the Great Debaters. He loves the theater so much, he decided to leave our grad write-up brainstorm with his Good Friend, Ghazal. Since he chose her over us, we asked her what to write. She said, "he's really serious about his school work." I'm not sure that she and Ms. Brock see eye to eye on that. On a serious note, Mikey will be missed for his friendship, excellent basketball ability, and occasional breaks from his grumpy demeanor. - Phat Beej, Big Rich, Ferris, Snacks, Bluteau, Captain Stordy, and J-bum

Chantelle Fynn

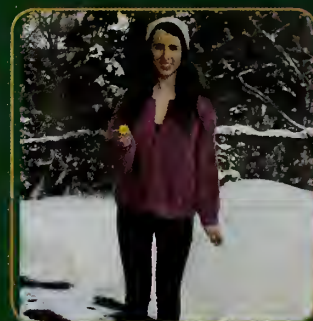

Let the battle begin. If you ever wonder who appears to be asleep on one of the couches in the grade 12 lounge – no doubt it is Chantelle Fynn, or Lynn or Flynn, who knows, but her name doesn't really matter because it is her incredible voice that holds her title. When we started flirting with the hustle, failure became our ex. Now we are engaged to the game and married to success. You are Calvin and I am Klein, and together, no matter which superstore, we will stand hunter by hunter. I am so happy that I know you a little too well. PS: Here's a million dollars. God is within you. So is Beyoncé.

- KR

Maya Gantar

If you asked anyone who the smartest person in grade 12 is, the name you'd hear would be, "Maya Gantar." As well being a complete and utter brainiac, Maya is a kind and loyal friend. I've known Maya since grade seven and have fond memories of being saved by you during Ms. Woodie's homework checks (seriously, I would've failed without you). Who can forget Maya's epic Halloween costumes? You were kind enough to let us eat your costume-contest candy, and your "grand gateaus" from getting 100s on all your French tests. We can't forget the countless hours we've spent watching Maya walk back and forth to the stage to receive every award at every closing ceremony (seriously, just keep her onstage). And our band trip escapades (Scrapmetal!!!). Whether it was sharing her food or driving us home after just about anything, Maya will always be there for us as a shoulder to cry on, a friend to rely on, and a fellow gossip for the group girl chats in the grade 12 lounge. -love you forever, Urs, Quinn, and Katya

Boston Ehsan

Boston came to Grammar in grade 7 with an unforgettable head of hair. Most didn't realize how his petite frame could support it. It was obvious he was a true athlete when he immediately joined the soccer and hockey teams. With a name like Boston, he enjoyed any team, be it the Celtics, Red Sox, Bruins or Patriots... you'd know if one of these teams had won a big game the night before because he'd be wearing their jersey. If he wasn't wearing that, he was wearing something you'd never seen before, whether it was Armani, Lacoste or some other extravagant brand that he had picked up in Miami. He won best dressed in grade 9 and he immediately thanked 1 person for helping him win, Cherry. She worked tirelessly to make sure his outfits were cleaned, pressed and ironed each morning. Even if his favourite team lost the night before, one thing is for sure, Boston always walked into Grammar with a beaming smile and an infectious laugh... until Mr. Moffatt snagged the hat off his head. All the best in your bright future Boston! Aiden, Aram, Andrew and Iain.

Frankie Gnann

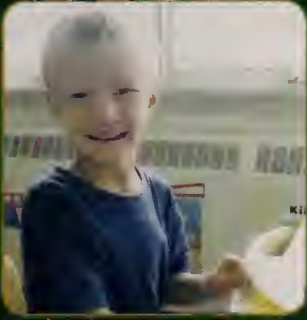

Frankie first came to Grammar knowing only four phrases of English. However, you wouldn't know that now, considering the number of synonyms she can find to describe how stressed she is about her next test/essay/lab/assignment/etc. The most common of them all, "I'm going to fail," is actually synonymous to "I'm going to get a hundred." Although Frankie always joked about marrying rich, she actually works extremely hard in school, while making sure that all her friends are okay, especially us. She always puts others first, even if that means ruining all her clean white shirts with mascara stains. You are the strongest and most loving person we have ever met. (We've all side stepped your "quick" smooch with WB in the hallway.) Although you came to us with your middle school out-of-control bob cut, you're now Stacy's mom cause we all know you've got it going on. Regardless of where we all are next year, whenever you need to talk, Inhwa will get her car, Urs in shotgun, and we'll go to the parking lot to let it all out. We'll love you forever, and you will always be our sunshine.

Love Inny and Urs

Simon Herbinger

With the strength of a thousand men, Simon is most commonly confused for Arnold Schwarzenegger. This is a common mistake, as Simon's deep love of food has allowed him to finally compete in the category of featherweight. It is obvious that if Simon continues on his illustrious trajectory of muscular gains, he may even reach his ambitious target weight of 115lbs very soon. If you ever need any herbs or spices while at Grammar, Simon is your man. He supplements his high-protein diet with an alternate meal plan called "the seaweed diet." Simon claims that French is his first language, but he really only speaks the language 60% of the time, 100% of the day. Seriously though, we all wish Simon success in his future endeavours beyond the Grammar School hallways, and we know that he will make his mark.

-SD

Inhwa Kim

Inhwa, also known as Harold or Inho, is by far the most liked person in our grade. However, don't let her little cute Korean lunches fool you; we know Inhwa's adventurous side exists. Did you know that one day on our grade 10 Europe trip in Barcelona we spent 3 hours wandering around the town and asking "Addidas Tienda" to random people? Inhwa even has a sporty side. For the past 3 years, the JV girls basketball team has relied on Inhwa to make the craziest trick shots. If Inhwa Kim is anything, it's caring; there isn't a time when she's not there for you. Inhwa, we know that you are destined for greatness, and you will touch everyone you meet by being the type of friend that "sees the first tear, catches the second, stops the third, and turns the fourth into a smile." See ya soon buddy and love ya!

-Kumar & Quinn

Renuka Koilpillai

It all began at the table in Ms. Oliver's class. Then, when grade 8 came around, a third member joined to complete the diversity. And since then, we've all had the same classes together. Some of our finest memories come from the numerous sleepovers we've had since middle school, and those are the times we've gotten to know Renuka the best. Renuka is one of the smartest and hardest working people we have ever met. She's always dedicated to what she does, whether it's soccer, musical, debating, or especially JV basketball. Most importantly, she's dedicated to her friends; she is always there to give us advice and comfort. Renu, you are always the first person we go to when we need to talk to someone because you always know what to say. This 7-consecutive-year class rep and now Head Girl is someone whose leadership will not be limited to the single hall of Grammar. Renuka, we know that your hard work is going to pay off, and when it does, let's celebrate back at Biarritz.

Love Qstew and Ikim P.S. I'll let you know when I kill Voldemort.

Robyn Lane

Robyn Lane really doesn't have time to be our friend, between achieving extraordinary academic success, dancing her way to glory, devoting ample time to Priscilla, and nurturing her apple cider addiction, but she stays friends with us anyway. Despite all of this, Ribena still manages to pay constant attention to her outfit choices. A dedicated and committed student, Robyn can often be found doodling mermaids and various other creatures in lieu of taking notes, yet she still manages to academically exceed us all. Robyn has been given the ability of making anything sound intelligent, evident in her preference of cupcakes with a icing to cupcake ratio in favour of the icing. Robyn is as essential to us as the fudge she provides us with. Ribena often has us laughing when she awakens from her deep, perpetual sleep on the couch to amuse us with a horrible pun, or to remind us of the names of her dogs. Oh Robyn, where do I end? FIN

-JP, CUXM, CL, LM, EM

Trevor Law

Trevor came to this school in the third grade, sporting a mushroom cut that lasted for many years until he realized he looked like an idiot. Since then, he has been upholding truth and justice in the halls of this establishment, as well as sharing his deep and expert knowledge of every single automobile ever created, from Abarth to Volvo. He indulges in Top Gear obsessively and is never hesitant to quote the show and present us all with various clips that make jokes about things we don't understand. He constantly describes situations as "less than ideal" while finishing with his trademark, greatly exaggerated, snort. And let's not forget his chest, the butt of many jokes as well as a convenient storage location. Although he aspires to be a doctor or engineer, we all know he's actually going to do a masters in law and become a judge, even if he doesn't want to. He has no choice. Remember one thing: He is the Law.

-JM

Clara Long

Clara Long can be symbolised well by her clothes. Anyone else may only see her colourful array of similar hoodies, but we get to see the hidden beauty that lies underneath those hoodies - her beautiful selection of shirts. Clong hides her best features to the general population - perhaps out of superiority, perhaps to create intrigue, no one really knows. When Clong first arrived at the Grammar School, she was (unfortunately - from her point of view) consumed into the group at the end of the hallway. However, do not assume that we really know anything about her - despite having most of our free moments being spent with her; she is still as much an enigma to us as she was the day she arrived. Any attempt at discovering more about her past is immediately shut down with her trademark sass. All of this is amounting to say that, though, on the surface, we know very little about Clong, we enjoy every minute we spend with her, whether we are being quietly shamed by her, being vomited on together, or she is re-teaching us all of our classes. Love, RL, CM, LM, EM, and JP

Jake MacDonnell

Shooter came to our school in Grade 10 and right from the get go showed his importance to the school in many ways. In the first month, he made the Varsity Basketball Team and proved himself worthy of the academic challenge with outstanding grades. But now what must be spoken about is how he got to be known as the legendary "Shooter." Accompanying this name is the memory of playing basketball at Camp Mockingee. This camp allowed us to realize just how much Jake likes to shoot the basketball. As we got to know him on this trip, we realized that Shooter is capable of packing a lot of food for one night, including his favorite munchies. He flew through high school with continued academic and athletic success. In January 2014, the basketball team attended the Bill Dompierre Tournament, where he got the highlight of his high school basketball career with an astonishing 23 points. Other memories of Shooter include the famous quote, "Biology is Done Like Dinner," with the long list of unmentionable quotes and events in the duration of the basketball trips. We miss you on the Finance Team. Good luck with everything. -Aram, Iain, and Aiden

Andrew Machum

With a mom like Mama Nancy, one of Halifax's most esteemed news anchors and a renowned actress, Andrew was bound since birth to be in the spotlight, and accordingly, from throwing up in backpacks in primary to wowing assemblies with his majestic voice, he has left quite a mark on the Halifax Grammar School. Throughout high school, in addition to fully producing and editing two entire musical albums, he has also established himself as a true wave runner with his family's ever-changing boat collection. His adventures have included travelling to places such as Chester, McNab's Island, Bedford, and, of course, to the Halifax waterfront for his weekly visits to Hamachi. With his experience in boating, Andrew's transition to driving was quite smooth, and it did not take long for him to grow very fond of his car's horn. We believe that his legendary honking skills will continue to serve him well all the way down to Berklee. Good luck on your future endeavors! We are hoping to see you on the top of the iTunes charts in no time! Xoxo Aiden, Aram, Iain

Erin MacNeil

When Beaver Bank's finest citizen, Erin MacNeil, first graced the Grammar School with her presence, she was proudly introduced as "Laura". L.O.L. She is of a shy nature, and therefore it took her 3 periods to politely tell us that her name was, in fact, Erin. After we got that straightened out, Erin decided that she would forgive our mistake, and thank goodness she did, because she turned out to be one of our best friends. She quickly came out of her shell on the basketball court, in the hallway, and even on the soccer field. Erin has no time for ratchet girls; thankfully, we passed the test because Erin is a caring and compassionate friend, and high school wouldn't have been the same without her. If American Eagle doesn't work out, we will probably find her inventing a way to perform surgery without touching the "goop." Either way, she will go on to do great things. Muah, xoxo, AS, CW, AM.

Garrett Mallery

Aka sneaky fingers, Grat, Gmal, Ferris Bueller. There are several things that set Garrett apart from your average teenager: his conflicted religious ideas, his spelling, and his sneaky fingers. Garrett is an accomplished gourmand, having eaten at all the top restaurants in the city, and he is quite a talented chef for his age. However, he is terrible at cleaning after he cooks. Like, I have literally never seen him put a dish in the dishwasher. His family used to employ two housekeepers because it is a full-time job to clean up after this guy. Socially, Garrett had a wild grade ten, but settled down after beginning to date one of the Cashas (I think it's Lara). Academically, Garrett is an interesting case. He is a terrific writer but a horrendous speller. When brainstorming for these write-ups, he misspelled team, chocolate, and girl. Only one of those is a joke. Seriously, spell check was made for this guy. This summer, Garrett studied abroad in Spain, but judging by his Spanish grade, that was a frivolous expenditure. Garrett's course is Physics, despite having no friends in the class. Garrett is also an excellent shopper, as he always manages to get a deal. Seriously, Garrett has been a great friend who will be missed for his generosity, easy-going nature, and thriftiness. - Phat Beej, Big Rich, Snacks, Bluteau, Captain Stordy, My-key, and J-bum

Max McBride

Max, aka snax, snaxasoris rex, Mitchell Jacobs, maxxssh, Dirty Sanchez, belche, and syd the kid. This writeup would have written itself in jr. high when Max was still chubby, and had buck teeth, and had frosted tips in his hair. Unfortunately, our jr. high days are over, so this will take a more biographical approach. One may think that Max was born in Juarez or Istanbul with his aptitude for Spanish and resemblance to a certain Turkish female basketball player; however, he was born in Halifax. From a young age, Max was concerned with popularity, and has been known to say things like: "I'm really well-known in the South End." Max has been first in the school to do a number of things such as asking someone to prom and having a long-term girlfriend (even though he often claimed Erin was just a really good friend). In all seriousness, Max has a number of great qualities. These include his incredible lacrosse ability, which has landed him on numerous provincial teams and garnered attention from college scouts. Some scouts come watch his Midget AA hockey games just because he looks a lot like Sidney Crosby, but once they see his backward skating, they look for the nearest exit. Max is also known for his semi-serious gambling addiction. He poured hours of research in fantasy football, only to field a team that finished dead last. Max's great personality and incessant questions of "would you" will be missed next year wherever he decides to continue his studies. -Phat Beej, Big Rich, Ferris, Bluteau, Captain Stordy, My-key, and J-bum

Aiden McKinnon

Aiden came to Grammar in Grade 3. As he began his H.G.S. journey, he made many new friends, often through sports, including basketball, hockey, swimming, lacrosse, soccer and cross-country. He's well known for losing entire nights of sleep in preparation for small quizzes. A defining characteristic for Aiden would be his love of music; he definitely has a unique taste in music and plays piano (exquisitely), guitar and he has been known to break out into song at any point in time. Aiden will always be the only person that we have had the pleasure of knowing who may have actually completed Netflix, to the point where he has the American version as well. To add to his already long list of extra-curricular activities, Aiden became a trained lifeguard due to his long lasting love of the show Baywatch. In Aiden's free time, he enjoys hanging out with his friends on Fridays. He's also changed his personality to become "the Lizard King" for extended periods of time on his time off. He was also known to take extended lunch breaks before French class in Grade 9, which he maintains were "piano lessons." No matter how tired or stressed, Aiden could always make people around him happy with his contagious attitude. Best of luck as you move on to the next chapter of your life and just remember to stay cool as a cucumber. Forever in our hearts. -Andrew, Aram and Iain

Jake Megaffin

As a dedicated lifer of the Halifax Grammar School, Jake Megaffin has been a pillar of the Grammar community for 13 years. When I first met him in grade 3, it is fair to say he was lacking in vertical stature. Now, at a staggering 5'10," he towers over the average man. Better known by his legendary nickname, Snakeman, Jake is academically prodigious, as evidenced by his predicted IB 7's in physics and math and 6's in everything else. Jake has sailed more than most people have walked. Unfortunately for him, this means he has to take perilous vacations to harsh climates like Florida and Cyprus. His main accomplishments in life include having all female best friends on Snapchat, getting 100 on the physics test that everyone failed, and having a terrible taste in music. Jake can take pride looking back on his Grammar career knowing he put in less work than everyone else but got better results. Best of luck engineering at Queen's and beyond - hopefully the girls are better than "3 out of 10 at best." - TL

Amy Minnikin

Amy F. Minnikin, Grammar's finest lifer. Amy has several incredible accomplishments at Grammar ranging from her four years on the senior varsity basketball team, her impressive skiing career, and her outstanding soccer goalkeeping skills; however, it is safe to say her proudest accomplishment is "never missing a uniform day, in thirteen freaking years here," which she kindly reminds us if we forget ours. Amy is a self-proclaimed "prankster" with a passion for Disney princesses; don't even get her started on Ariel. Amy is without a doubt one of the most caring and thoughtful people we have ever had the pleasure of meeting and calling our best friend. She is always there to listen to our problems and reassure us that she has yet to start the assignment we are freaking out about. No matter what Amy chooses to pursue in the future, she will be amazing at it! We wish you the best of luck!! Much love Shnonny goo <3 -EM, AS, CW

Christine Moore

Christine probably doesn't remember how or when she met us, as her head is occupied primarily by One Direction lyrics, the Simpsons, skiing, and utterly useless and bitter memories from her Prep School days. Though we may be enthusiastic friends to Christine, we are, more often than not, greeted with a blank stare as we tell her our amusing anecdotes that she then proceeds to not find amusing. This is an excellent example of how Christine betters us as our friend. Christine often acts as a calming force for our collective bizarreness and then alternately provides with dramatics. Xtine's company these past few years is often amusing: her intriguing, and often overwhelming, linguistic contributions have frequently left us profoundly in awe. I don't believe any of us will forget the magnificent definition of an albatross that she has regaled us with. Christine herself is o'erflowing with magnificent qualities of helpfulness and joy, but only lets them out in the subtlest of ways.

xoxo "That's funny." no smile or signs of joy --CJXM - RL, CYL, LM, EM, JP

Leah Morris

Have a great summer! -William Appleman Williams

It's a miracle that Leah has withstood 3 years of our friendship. Leah remains friends with us despite gymnastic, verbal, emotional, and physical abuse. Some of our best memories with Leah involve loving jokes about her Avatar suit, leaking, and the tragic grinding of Java beans, all of which provoke a severe emotional reaction (which can never be determined as being joyful or deeply miserable). Any anecdote we could provide about Leah could never match any of the sparkling ones that she provides us with, which always cause the same feelings of intense boredom and then extreme joy. Leah is a truly irreplaceable friend, the equal we will never meet in her diversity of heritage, being part hobbit, fin, untrustable prussssssian, and rough-handed Newfie fisherwoman. Leah never says no. She says onion. She is also a huge fan of cuban sugar, the letter D and bow ties. Leah, always imagines the possibilities!!! - EM, CL, JMP, RL, CJXM

Ellie Morum

Every day, in the early hours (around 7:55am), Ellie wakes up, ready to face the many challenges of the day, whether it be spelling "(un)availability," sending that "last" shipment on Hay Day, or making the dangerous winter trek to school to arrive mere seconds before the 2nd bell. Over the years, Rigby has perfected getting ready in under 10 minutes while still looking presentable. She's also perfected the ability of rapidly becoming addicted to tv shows, having marathons of said tv shows, cooking chocolate chip pancakes, and spending every minute of free time on Hay Day or Tumblr. It's not she who needs us, as Ellie needs little else other than Parks & Recreation, her shattered ipod, and brownies, but rather we who need her. Ellie's cutting sense of humour and contagious myriad of laughs are the glue of our group. Despite having lost her charming British accent upon her arrival in Prep 4, we still love her. Ellie will always be remembered for her wisdom and intelligence (despite being two years younger than us), and her verbal abuse of "sparkling" anecdotes. Ellie will always be welcomed at Grammar, whether it be by the arms of a friend, or the jaws of Amy. -JMP, CJXM, LSM, RL, CL

Rowan Munnery

With dashing good looks and undeniable British charm, Rowan has the perfect material for acting in a new Indiana Jones remake, or at least that's what we tell him. Having read several Encyclopedias, as well as the dictionary, many times, we can only look at him with admiration, and tell him to go outside more for god's sake. A member of the Grammar tech crew, Rowan also has an undeniable passion for history and mildly interesting, yet useless, statistics and facts about everything that has happened over the past 2,000 years. Quite honestly, we can't decide whether this is laudable, or a reason for an intervention, but we can say we're quite impressed all the same. So shine on you crazy diamond, and will you please find some music that is newer than fifty years old?

-SD

Jura Peddle

Jura is like that artsy-fartsy, Scottish-Newfie, cat-loving, loyal friend you wish you were almost as cool as though you know you'll never quite reach that level of awesome in your lifetime. You don't have one of those? Probably that is because there exists one Jura Peddle, and she only picks friends as rad as she is. She's pretty cool. She drinks tea, pronounces the letter R weirdly, and survives IB using a few key mottos: "Sleep is for the weak," and "Netflix is an acceptable alternative to anything." Jura is also the best chum/friend/buddy, whether we're crying about a geography presentation, a basketball game, or parents. She will undoubtedly become the Head of Pediatrics at a world class hospital, and you're missing out if you haven't gotten to know this bundle of frightening hair that takes two hours to straighten (I would know). But seriously, she's our go-to person for everything, and we love her for it. I personally salute you, Jura, in the fashion of the Romans: with a manly chest thump.

-EL, CJXM, LSM, RL, CL

Katya Remy

An ostrich is tall, has long legs, and is awesome, just like you. You have been my best friend for the past 3 years, and I wouldn't have it any other way. We are complete opposites, but somehow we make it work. The Urban Dictionary defines Katya as a bear on a bicycle, but I think you're an amazing bear on a unicycle. You've come so far from the person you used to be, and I'm so proud of you! I know that you should work on locking doors, and that if there is anyone within a mile radius who has an apple or granola bar, you will be there, begging. I love our daily trips to Superstore, where we buy 35 dollars worth of junk food and never feel guilty. Even though you "accidentally" eat all my food, I still love you. Katya Remy, you are my spirit animal, and I wish you the absolute best in the future. Salut! -CF

Sorana Selegan

You know that one person who seems to know everything and everyone better than you ever have? That's Sorana, who I wish I'd been good friends with for longer than around just a year. Sadly, she was spending her time in places much more impressive than Halifax, such as New York and Romania. In general, I automatically consider her to be a cool person without question. Who else would sneak food during a Physics class with me? Or write odd Romanian phrases on my handouts? She's also brilliant school-wise, and I've since accepted Sorana will understand everything much better than I do. She pulls off ninety-nine percents and enjoys scholarly things like debating, so I don't stand a chance. Regardless, she's definitely more than smart; she's also fearless, maybe-but-not-quite Latina, short, somebody I'm really glad I got to know better, and a person with whom I will always build the best physics apparatuses with. Go forth and be awesome at business school, friend! Noroc! (I didn't just use Google Translate there, of course) -RB

BJ Spurr

In grade 3, BJ fought AJ Case over a game of floor hockey. Instead of fearing the consequences, he turned to Mr. O and argued that AJ should either be ejected or given a 5-minute major. This sums up BJ Spurr: passionate, resourceful, and sometimes infuriating (mostly just infuriating). He hasn't changed much. He still has an annoying amount of sports knowledge, his favorite item at Wendy's is still the LBC (or did we mean JBC), and he still bricks jump shots like it's his day job. However, some things have changed. Athletically, BJ always had a high sports IQ, especially in basketball, but failed to translate his adept knowledge to the court. While many friends were more successful in their favorite sports, BJ hadn't reached his full potential (even Garrett started over BJ on the Jr. High team, and we all know that wasn't the coaches' fault). In fact, for most of his career, BJ was known around the league for superior timekeeping and for knowing every referee's name. However, now co-captain of the varsity team, it's safe to say he's finally lived up to his own expectations. He continues to be a loyal and amusing friend whose few faults can be blamed on his parents: sadly, they didn't teach their son how to skate, ski, bike ride, or even drive an automobile. Jokes aside, BJ never fails to light up a room. Whether it's by fighting a fellow classmate, calling out a teacher, or telling a terrible joke, many at Grammar, especially Mr. Bhathena, will no doubt miss BJ next year. -Big Rich Ferris, Snacks, Bluteau, Captain Stordy, My-key, and J-bum.

Quinn Stewart

We always like to say that Qstew is like an onion; she has a lot of layers. She might seem a bit too sarcastic when you first meet her, like when she says "Thank you" when we hold the door for her. But if you go deeper, you'd realize that was just the beginning. Q has an unexpected taste in music from The Neighbourhood to 2 Chainz. We discovered this on a road trip to one of our JV basketball games, of which, by the way, Quinn is one of our star players, when Quinn excitedly plugged in her iPod to jam to an unfamiliar song. With an odd beat and a half-decent rapper, Quinn assured us the "good part" was coming, but it never did. We could tell you that she's Tumblr famous, but that's hard to prove because her Tumblr is impossible to find. Quinn, guess what, we found it. Like the post you re-blogged on January 19; you might have "cold hands," but we know you have a "warm heart." We're glad to have gotten to know all of your layers over the years—even the ones we couldn't include here. Love you forever, nutella sandwich. -Mayella, Moneybagz, and Rottenbanana aka captain stordy, aka Skin D, aka Stowdy

Will Stordy

Will Stordy had been a mystery to many of us for years, until he bared it all at Keji. Will was a promising young hockey player with 2 significant accomplishments: scoring the OT winner in Atom AAA, and being named captain of the jr. high team, a team coached by his father, Larry. Unfortunately, his frail frame didn't mix well with the growing physicality of hockey, so he switched to basketball, where his length was useful. After years of mediocrity, Stordy has become an important member of the varsity team, known for throwing down outrageous windmill dunks in warm-up. He's also known for many things outside the realm of athletics. This includes skipping entire school days (me days), everything about him being skinny, piling in comparison to his siblings in looks, creating friction within the basketball team at dances, owing his friends large sums of money, never being wrong, showing off his driving skills in the Tim Horton's parking lot, and loving ridiculous run-on sentences. In all seriousness, Stordy is a great guy who will be missed for his sense of humour, confidence, and loyalty. He has always been a good friend to all of us, and we hope to continue these friendships in the future. -BS, JB

Allie Surrette

Dear Allison (Allie, Kalawstail, Mrs. Cat, Cougar, Champ.) You technically attended Grammar for 2 years, but we figure your attendance record is probably about half that. We're grateful for the days you decide to step away from Miami for a quick stop by the hallway. Although you are a "graceful swan" on the water, you have yet to develop your co-ordination on land. Underneath her "mount gay rum" hat, you will find our easily flustered, but equally loveable BFF. Against our advice, Allie enrolled herself in HL math and HL physics (what were you thinking?!), and to this day has yet to break a sweat. Allie can be found perfectly parallel parking the 'burb, or at the gym gettin swole. When she is around, a good time is had by all. Whatever Allie chooses, be it business or engineering (???), she will probably postpone her career until she's too old to be the world's shortest Olympian. Peace, love, happiness, CW, EM, AM

Richard Waller

Aka big rich, aka get rich or die trying, aka Head guck boy, aka Hygiene, aka Squalor, aka Chanel, aka the lion. Richard Dean Waller came to Grammar in grade 4, and has been making huge impacts academically, athletically, and socially ever since. Kind of. Academically, Rich has been a stellar student, other than that grade 10 bio course. Athletically, he has a very high sports IQ. When his friends tried out for basketball in grade 10, he followed, and began the Richard Waller Era of Grammar Basketball. In grade 10, he was named player of the game and was recruited by the infamous Kevin Yield. Unfortunately, his career peaked then. A movie based on Big Rich's social life would be titled: The Curious Case of Richard Waller. For instance, he displayed great confidence when elected Head Boy, and has done a great job. Many even say he's the best since Ankur Gupta. However, Rich remains petrified of Coach, despite being a star player and knowing him for years. All that being said, when one thinks of Rich they think of two things: his diet and driving. He eats virtually only processed meat and cheese and abhors fruits and vegetables unless dipped in chocolate. Driving with Rich has shaped my high school years. His 1996 Volvo wagon has been subject to vandalism from eggs, cake, curry, toothpaste, trumpets, and stab attempts from pirates. Also, it's broken down in the Willow tree intersection and has been used in numerous crimes. Seriously, Rich is a great guy (aside from the ¾ combo), and will be missed for his friendship, leadership, and scruffy hair. - Phat Beej, Ferris, Snacks, Bluteau, Captain Stordy, My-key, and J-bum

Iain Welch

Attempting to write about the great legacy that is King Iain Welch in a short paragraph will definitely test our writing skills. Being lucky enough to spend thirteen years at what is widely known as the best school in Canada, Iain has definitely made his mark at Grammar by leading the prep choir with his angelic voice and starring as the lead character in the prep 4 production of Robin Hood in 2006. As a result of these phenomenal feats, Iain progressed through school as a role model and hero to many kids, and is now a living legend in the prep school, especially popular with pre-primary students, who refer to him as Sherriff Jackson due to his strong, authoritative presence during his daily visits. It's not only Iain's remarkable accomplishments during his early years, but also his extensive knowledge on vital events occurring around the world and his expert like recitation of statistical points (commonly known as I-facts) that put him on top of the school's social food chain. He's also a strong advocate of deforestation, known to wander into the local wooded areas in south-end Halifax during the wee hours of the night and rip down trees with his bare hands. Lastly and most importantly, all of Iain's closest friends agree that his warm-heartedness and unrivaled sense of humour have helped significantly on our arduous journey through the Halifax Grammar School, and that it is an honour to be able to call him our friend. -Love, Aiden, Aram, and Andrew

Claire West

Claire, aka Cbear aka Cwaire, when we first met, we bonded over sour orange juice and French braids. And not much has changed, considering you still are the master of braiding. Claire's passions consist of soccer, singing, speeding, and sweets. Her outfits range from business casual, to Kim's jeans, to downright homeless. She can always be seen confidently limping down the hallway no matter what she is sporting. We're pretty sure Claire is the reason Burt's Bees is still in business, and she always smells divine. Although we think Claire's true calling was JV ball, she seems to have spent most of her time on the stupid soccer field. It's hard to believe that Claire is so involved in the musical considering her tendency to turn red over anything at all. Claire's consistent honour roll status may or may not help her in her pursuit of a doctorate, but we know that whatever she chooses, she will be successful. Love ya long time! AM, EM, AS

Gary Yoon

Gary Yoon joined us at Grammar for Senior School. He is a student from Korea with a world of seriousness on his shoulders, and he did his best to prove to us that he is actually cool and easy going. As a result, he used his ability of expressing his seriousness and his acting ability through his character, Mr. Whitney, in the musical "Anything Goes." At the musical, he was exceptionally good at acting drunk, thus making the other cast and crew members of the musical have a good laugh! He is truly great at taking pictures of all kinds of events that take place at the school, and his shots have been featured on the school's social media outlets and in the yearbook. I hope that Gary has a great time at university as he moves along. And, please Gary, enjoy yourself!!!

Trips: Grammar on the Road

Under clear blue skies, Grammar students and their 11 teachers set off on their Long Green Wall. After the photo taken, they set up camp at the base of the Wall, and spent the night under the stars before heading back to Beijing the next morning. (Caption: Thomas Heatherly and Ed's Backpack)

Here, There, and Everywhere

From Point Pleasant Park to China, Grammar students explored their world through educational excursions. Destinations included Noggins Farm, Louisbourg, The Maritime Museum of the Atlantic, The Natural History Museum, The Planetarium, Ballet Jorgen, The Maritime Marionettes, Neptune Theatre, The Miner's Museum, Shakespeare by the Sea, Camp Mockingee, the Art Gallery of N. S., Kejimikujik Park, Camp Brigadoon, Feed Nova Scotia, and The Discovery Center.

P2s visit the Art Gallery of Nova Scotia to participate in activities with artist Marie Webb.

Community Service

From flashmobs to food drives, this year was an exceptional example of the power of a dedicated school and its dedicated students. Whether was supporting the Malala's Dream Coffee Houses or volunteering at the local Ronald McDonald House, the HGS community demonstrated leadership, both locally and globally. Sylvan Grayson (Steward)

At Grammar, we believe our students should develop a genuine desire to help others. Students at HGS learn about their local and global communities and develop skills critical to being responsible, active, global citizens throughout their lives. At HGS, Service Learning integrates instruction, action, and reflection. This year, school-wide service learning projects, like the Prep's Giving Tree initiative for Parker Street Food Bank and the Middle School's Home for Dinner project with Ronald McDonald House, challenged our students to get involved with the wider community. Middle School students also took part in service afternoons, volunteering with local organizations. For the first time in a number of years, M5 and S1 students had the opportunity to participate in the Duke of Edinburgh program, while S2 and S3 students completed countless hours of service as part of their IB Diploma. Other initiatives included these activities and organizations: Ovarian Cancer Walk of Hope, Hunger for Halloween, We Day, National Cupcake Day for the SPCA, Anti-Bullying Campaign, Pink T-Shirt Day for Kid's Help Phone, Trails Nova Scotia, Ecology Action Centre, Adsum House, Halifax Running for Water, Prep Readers and Math Buddies, Clean Nova Scotia, and Phoenix House.

70 Senior High students participate in "Movember" with Herr Faltner.

Students did active service with Trails Nova Scotia.

The entire school participated in the Terry Fox Run, which raised almost $9,000 this year.

The Prep Choir visited The Berkeley Seniors' Residence to share the gift of music.

HGS students visited a migrant school on the outskirts of Beijing on March 11, 2014. At Yanjing Gongyi School, they ran various activities for the grade 6 students. After lunch, they divided the group into four teams and played hockey with the sticks they brought from Halifax. This was one highlight of the China March Break Expedition.

Band at Halifax Grammar

The HGS Bands have had a year full of musical experiences. This year, we had five instrumental ensembles at our school: The HGS Beginner Band, The HGS Concert Band, The Senior Wind Ensemble, The HGS Jazz Band and The Junior Jazz Ensemble. In addition to these, The HGS Pep Band performed at the Grammar Classic. The Bands performed great at the Winter Concert in December. This was the first performance for our M2 bands, and they rose to the occasion. Also in December, The HGS Jazz Reception Band performed at the Lord Nelson Hotel for the Clearwater Holiday Party. In the New Year, in addition to other HGS ensembles, the musical pit band began working on the music for Anything Goes. The Jazz Reception Band performed again in February for the reception at the Moonlight Supper Club. Spring was a busy time with the HGS Concert Band, preparing for a trip to New Brunswick. They performed to school audiences and attended a production of Guys and Dolls at the Fredericton Playhouse and a special performance by Moncton's les Paiens. The Senior Musicians attended a Music Retreat in April at the Atlantica Resort, focusing on African Drumming and song writing. In May, all bands participated in the annual HGS Spring Concert. It was indeed an action packed year for the HGS Band Department!

This year, HGS's Middle School Drama Club presented an adaptation of Austen's acclaimed novel, Emma. With an exceptional cast comprised of students from grades 5 to 9, this year's production was full of comedic mishaps with disastrous consequences that had the audience either roaring with laughter or on the edge of their seats. These 22 dedicated and talented young actors expertly portrayed the intricacies of the intertwined relationships. They transformed from slouchy middle school kids to elegant young ladies and gentlemen. Special thanks goes to all the staff and parent volunteers who sewed and painted and built, helping to support the actors and create the scene necessary for a successful performance. After weeks of long hours and extensive rehearsals, the cast, along with Ann Marie MacNeil as producer, Ursula Calder (S3) as director, and Tobias Partridge (S1) as Stage Manager, presented the early 19th century world of Emma. "...a great deal can be done by those who dare to act!" —Mrs. Elton, Scene 14

Director: Garry Williams Musical Director: Shawn Whynot Set Designer: Zach Faye
Producer: Jennifer Cochrane Pit Band Conductor: Ian Mosher Vocal Director: Kristi Anderson

As another school year draws to a close, we are given the opportunity to reflect on the rich kaleidoscope of memories in our mind and the Senior School Musical will certainly bring back warm smiles and perhaps a little spontaneous choreography. How could we forget the kiss on the brig, our angel Claire or Ursula's trumpet solo on the bar in "Blow Gabriel Blow?" How will we ever forget the lyrics to "Blow Gabriel Blow"- even if we wanted to?

It was not always smooth sailing, but as we journeyed from strength to strength, the actors, musicians and crew captured that Cole Porter spirit and brought to life, in just 28 short days, the smash hit Anything Goes. Testament to this successful production was the dedication and positive attitude of every student, parent and staff member involved. You all deserve a standing ovation! To the class of 2013-2014, as your curtain closes on your time here at HGS, we wish you every success. You are moving ahead to create the future, but know that you are a part of our history and we were fortunate to have had the opportunity to share the spotlight with you. Congratulations! We will miss you.

Prep School Play

The Prep 4 Students have been busy rehearsing as they get ready for this year's Prep Drama Production of Hi Ho Robin Hood. It has been a busy two months as students memorize lines, learn songs, and practice their dance steps. Sherwood Forest will be the place to be as these students will bring to life the legend of Robin Hood and his quest to steal from the rich to give back to the poor. All the characters will be present including Maid Marian, Lady Merle, the evil Prince John, the Sheriff and his wife, and, of course, Robin Hood. Will Robin be able to save Nottingham from the treacherous forces that lurk in the forest? There is only one way to find out! The Prep One Classes will also be taking to the stage providing some medieval dancing and singing along with the Prep Four chorus.

HGS RECREATIONAL SKIING AND SKI TEAM

Recreational Skiing has long been a part of the winter Grammar experience! Several Friday afternoons and evenings saw busloads of Middle Students from M1-M5 taking to the slopes of Martock. With lessons available for all who needed them, even absolute beginners participated, and everyone improved their skills and had lots of fun with their friends. Thanks to Ms. Goodfellow and all the teacher chaperones who made this highlight of the school year possible!

Grammar Ski Racing

It was another stellar season for Grammar ski racers. Intermediate Girls (Katie Waller-10th, Julie Mosher, Julia Waddy, Ella Keefe-11th and Claire Neilson-9th-spore Aya Kamal) won the Capital and Metro Region Banners and won Silver at the Provincial Competition.

Intermediate Boys (Grant Keefe, Ian Keefe, Connor Keefe, Evan Ross and Will Blunden) successfully defended Grammar's title as Provincial Champions. Evan Ross won the individual gold medal and Connor won individual silver. Ian Keefe, with an injury, finished in 5th place, and Grant Keefe, racing against boys as much as 5 years older than him, finished in 6th place.

Senior Girls (Amy Minnikin, Frankie Gnann, Tara Sverko, Leah Morris and Christine Moore-spares Seasy Huang and Erica Weigand) won the Metro and Capital Region Banners and Silver at Provincials. Leah Morris finished in 4th provincially and Tara Sverko finished in 11th.

Senior Boys were represented admirably by Alex Peapell, Faisal Rshaidat, and Andrew Linton, with Andrew qualifying for provincials and finishing in 12th position. Special thanks to the coaches, Jakob Faltner and Angela McKegney.
